

DEAR AUNT
AGGY

Read through the problems written to Agony Aunt Aggy. Select at least two and give appropriate answers to each. Share your answers with your group.

Dear Aggy,
For the last few months I've had a really embarrassing problem - I keep losing my voice! One minute I can talk properly, the next minute my voice is really croaky. I've also started to grow hair in really embarrassing places! None of my mates seem to be having the same problem; help - what's happening to me?
Tom

Dear Aggy.
I don't have any female friends. The other girls leave me out of things all the time. I try to be friendly, but they turn away. Could it be because I'm too pretty and attractive to boys? How can I get the girls on my side?
Sophie

Dear Aggy,
Every time something important comes up in my life, I get really nervous and sweaty - my mates reckon I've got BO. Last week I had a date with this really cool girl (she's a complete babe), but I stood her up 'cos I was too embarrassed and nervous. Now I want to go out with her again and explain, but don't know what to do. Help!
Pete

Dear Aggy,
There's a fab boy I really fancy, but I think he's way out of my league. We go to the same school and have some lessons together, but I don't think he's ever noticed me. What I can't understand is that he goes out with quite ordinary-looking girls. How can I get him to notice me?
Ellie

Dear Aggy,
I have a really annoying older sister. She spends hours in the bathroom so I can't get a look-in and whenever she has her mates round they all gang up on me and call me horrible names. When I'm out they all seem to appear and go out of their way to be nasty to me and my mates. What's even worse is that I've started getting spots - I've tried all sorts of things including toothpaste. What can I do?
Andy

Dear Aggy,
I have a really annoying younger brother. He's always trying to get into the bathroom when I really want to use it and he has started pinching my stuff. Whenever my mates come round he's always there making annoying and embarrassing comments and what's worse, if we're out, he and his mates call out to us in the street. I had a boyfriend, but my brother told him so many lies about me that it put him off. He's ruining my life - what can I do?
Caroline